For Ros and Brian, a happy and lively couple, both retired and living in Barnstaple, North Devon, maintaining independence in their cherished home was essential. At ages 75 and 80, and both dealing with back issues – Ros having recently had surgery and Brian managing the effects of a procedure from 10 years ago – stairs were becoming increasingly difficult. Although they could still manage them, they wanted to restore comfort and safety. They recognised it was time to future-proof their home.

Searching for the right solution

But the couple wasn't searching for just any solution. Other options would be too disruptive to the style and flow of their modern interior and too clinical in appearance. 'We didn't want to alter the look of the house,' says Ros. 'And we didn't want something that shouted "mobility aid".'

We wanted something that blended in and provided us with more freedom, not less.'

Meeting Dolphin Stair Lifts South West and discovering Uplifts

Their search led them to Stannah. After contacting Stannah directly, they were referred to Dolphin Stair Lifts South West.

Dolphin Stair Lifts South West is a second-generation family-run business. As part of the exclusive Stannah Accredited Distributors programme, it is the sole Stannah distributor in the Devon area.

It has a large showroom displaying the Stannah product range, available for personalised appointments with free parking, and has been Stannah distributors for 29 years – the first to install Uplifts.
